Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

Q1: What are the key differences between Takaful and conventional insurance?

A1: Takaful operates on the principles of Tabarru (charity) and Mudarabah (profit-sharing), unlike conventional insurance which operates on a risk-transfer basis solely. Takaful participants contribute to a common pool, and profits (or surpluses) are shared among participants, while losses are borne collectively. Conventional insurance works on a contractual agreement with premium payments irrespective of profits.

Q2: What is the role of the Takaful operator?

A2: The Takaful operator manages the Takaful fund, invests the contributions, processes claims, and ensures compliance with regulations. They act as a manager or agent (Wakalah) on behalf of the participants.

Q3: How are claims handled in Takaful?

A3: Claims are handled according to the terms and conditions of the Takaful policy and the relevant regulatory framework. The process involves assessment of the claim, investigation if needed, and eventual payout from the Takaful fund, if the claim is valid.

Q4: What are some common types of Takaful products?

A4: Common types include family Takaful (covering death, disability, and critical illness), general Takaful (covering property, motor, and other risks), and health Takaful (covering medical expenses).
